

A Level French

Modern Foreign Languages

Exam Board: AQA

Duration: 2 Years

What is it worth? | A level

Why take this course? Who is it for?

Many universities and employers look favourably on applicants who have some language skills even if you won't be directly using them.

What does this course involve?

This course is for anyone who has studied French at GCSE level.

In this course you will cover some exciting units including: media and advertising, environment, communication technology, the Multicultural Society, culture, contemporary social issues, healthy Living and lifestyle

What possible progression routes are available after taking this course?

You can continue to study French at university. There are a wide variety of university degrees that incorporate languages. Such as; French Studies, French and Business, French and International Trade, French and European Studies or you can choose to study a pure languages degree such as Applied Languages or Combined Modern Foreign Languages.

What are the special features?

There are a wide variety of topic areas that let you look deeper into the French culture, cinema, traditions and customs and the French way of life.

What possible careers follow on from this course?

Languages fit with absolutely every career imaginable!

You can go on to work purely with languages, as an interpreter, translator, teacher or tour guide/holiday rep etc... But often, businesses will actively seek out Language Graduates to work with their business to establish and maintain overseas relationships with their overseas customers, offering plenty of opportunities for travel!

How you will be assessed?

You will be assessed in all 4 skill areas; Reading, Writing, Listening and Speaking.

You will have 1 exam that covers 3 skills; Listening, Reading and Writing and finally you will a Speaking exam.

Who do I see for further information? Miss Goodwin

New Course
2012